BDBF bolsters its employment team as Isabella Milnes-James joins as associate

Specialist employment and partnership law boutique BDBF welcomes Isabella Milnes-James as an associate.

Isabella advises both employees and employers on the full range of employment and advisory matters and brings a focused interest in workplace sexual harassment prevention.

Her arrival further strengthens BDBF's ability to deliver specialist counsel on high stakes employment and partnership matters for individuals and organisations alike.

BDBF is recognised as a leading firm for high-value employment and partnership work. It is known for exceptional client service, a strong litigation track record and a genuinely collaborative culture. The firm recently celebrated its thirteenth year of top-tier rankings in the major legal directories for senior executive work and continues to grow its expertise in complex disputes and strategic employer advice.

Gareth Brahams, Managing Partner said, "Isabella's deep interest in employment law, combined with her intellect will be a real asset to the team as we continue to expand."

Isabella Milnes-James said, "I'm thrilled to be joining such a talented and highly respected team!"
