

Quick Tips for Preparing for GDPR

```
[et_pb_section bb_built="1" fullwidth="on"
_builder_version="3.0.99"
global_module="2027"][et_pb_fullwidth_post_title admin_label="Insight Header" global_parent="2027" meta="off" featured_placement="background" text_color="light"
_builder_version="3.0.99" title_font="|||||||"
meta_font="|||||||" background_color="rgba(12,113,195,0.5)"
background_blend="multiply" custom_padding="150px||100px|"]
```

```
[/et_pb_fullwidth_post_title][et_pb_section bb_built="1" _builder_version="3.0.47"][et_pb_row _builder_version="3.0.47" background_size="initial" background_position="top_left"
background_repeat="repeat"][et_pb_column type="1_2"][et_pb_text _builder_version="3.0.99"]
```

GDPR will come into force on 25th May 2018. It's a big change but it builds on the existing UK data protection regime. So, if you have the basics such as a data protection policy in place, then you will be building from solid foundations. Here are 10 quick tips for HR managers on preparing for the GDPR.

```
[/et_pb_text][et_pb_column type="1_2"][et_pb_cta title="Quick Tips for Preparing for the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) " button_url="/wp-content/uploads/2018/01/BDBF-article-rebrand-Quick-tips-for-GDPR.pdf" button_text="View PDF" background_color="#1d7079" _builder_version="3.0.99" custom_button="on"
button_text_color="#ffffff" button_font="|||||||"]
```

[/et_pb_cta][et_pb_column][et_pb_row][et_pb_section]